WET AND WILD -- Upland boy finds one of summer's pleasures is a new 'Slip 'n Slide' toy. This is even more fun than sleeping on a water bed.

Knee-Deep News Wades Into The Past

The Upland News keeps track of everyone; no item is too trivial to record. You do not have to recognize or remember the people named in the following personals taken from old copies of the News. The items are enjoyable because they tell of the genuine interest that residents had in each other.

This report about a local banker appeared in 1918:

"R.F. Lemon got his eye hurt the other day while chasing a chicken into its coop. The injury, caused by a piece of lattice that was jutting out, at first was feared serious. Now it is believed he will not lose the sight of the eye."

All other quotations are from issues of the News in the 1920s. Here are some examples of reporting on ill-health and accidents:

"Friends will be sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. Martha Littooy, mother of Miss L. Littooy, at her home on 2nd Avenue. She is not expected to recover."

"Friends of Allen Moser are pleased to see him so much improved from a long illness that he is able to take motor drives. He is on the road to recovery."

"Mrs. A.N. Monroe fell down the steps of the library the other day. She bruised her right hip and leg and her ankle is swollen to a painful extent. Her many friends hope she will soon recover."

"Tommy Hilberg of Creighton's Service Station has been experiencing a lot of trouble with his teeth. He is gradually improving, and hopes he will be in good health soon."

Jack Bryden, right-hand man at the San Antonio Water Co., broke his right arm the other day when he was cranking his Ford. The battery of his car was weak." (We'd guess!)

Here are a few more interesting personals:

"A delightful camping trip was enjoyed over the week-end when Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Whitney and sons, George and Brad, and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Howe, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Earl Blakeslee and son, Beverly, spent Saturday and Sunday in San Antonio Canyon."

"John Nisbet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Nisbet, has been spending his vacation here with his parents. John is a geologist with the Empire Oil Co., in Oklahoma, and likes his work very much. He is another Upland boy who has gone out from here and made a success in his chosen work. In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Nisbet have three sons built of the stuff that gets men out in front of the business world."

The "Personals" also functioned as a Lost and Found column, and the newspaper was a collection section. Example from 1924:

"A full set of false teeth was found after the July 4th Celebration. Call at the News office and identify."

On July 25, the News reported that the teeth had been reclaimed, but added: "If you have lost a brand new pair of duck pants (this item is for men) inform this office."

Sweet nostalgia. But, so far as it goes for the Upland News, you've come a long way, baby.

Placement Tests Here

Three opportunities remain for prospective new students to take the placement test at Chaffey College in time for fall quarter registration.

The test, a registration requirement, will be offered Aug. 5 (8:30 a.m.), Aug. 16 (6 p.m.) and Sept. 2 (8:30 a.m.).

Appointments must be made by calling the guidance office receptionist at 987-1737 or 822-7456 well in advance of the test date.

Registration for the fall quarter will be on Sept. 5-6 and 12-13. However, both prospective fulltime students (12 or more study units) and part-time students must apply for admission and meet certain requirements before registration.

Upland Supports Plea On Smog Emergency

This week the City Council agreed to support Riverside's request that the governor declare a state of emergency because of air pollution in the South Coast Air Basin and implement the conversion of most of the area's six million vehicles to burn natural gas or propane.

The 4-1 decision in favor of the resolution came at the end of a nearly three-hour special meeting called by the council to discuss the controversial request.

The resolution, along with a background presentation had been presented to the council at its regular meeting last week. The matter was referred to the city's environmental committee for further study at that time.

Riverside is spearheading a drive to enlist the support of some 50 cities in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties -- the South Coast Air Basin -- in prompting the governor to take executive action this month on the issue.

The Riverside plan, based on a year and a half study of the effects of smog and the feasibility of the massive conversion process, has been presented to Gov. Reagan, who appointed a special task force to investigate the problem.

Under the plan, vehicles with the longest life expectancy would be converted to natural gas systems over an 18-month period. Costs would be borne by an increase of taxes on the already low-cost gaseous fuels. Truck lines would pay for their own conversions with a tax break from the state.

The plan, coupled with existing 1975 emission standards for new automobiles, would -- in the words of Donald Zimmer, a co-author of the plan -- provide "the maximum amount of clean air with the minimum of inconvenience to the public over the short run."

The plan he said, does not rule out other measures that might be developed to alleviate the smog problem.

Y Summer Trip Planned

A trip to San Dimas Park Thursday, Aug. 27, will conclude the Cucamonga Summer Recreation program jointly sponsored by the Assistance League of Upland, the Ontario-Upland Y.M.C.A. and the Cucamonga Elementary School District.

More than 125 youngsters are enrolled in the program which includes swimming at the Chaffey College pool, games at Cucamonga Elementary School, and crafts, movies, trampoline, rope climb, boxing, kickball and other games at the Y.M.C.A.

Carlos and George Oliva are in charge of the program and are assisted by Mary Ann Maule, Ramon Montoya, Joe Hernandez, Manuel Bocanayra and Robert Jennings.

Upland And Employees Call Truce

The City of Upland's labor troubles, which saw City Manager Elwin Alder accused of misconduct and bad faith at the park of the discord, have apparently subsided.

The Upland Police Officers' Association (UPOA) and city negotiators have reached agreement on wages, hours and fringe benefits. The agreement must still be approved by the City Council.

In addition, the president of the Upland City Employees Association (UCEA) and city negotiators have agreed to resume talks Wednesday.

The negotiations hit a snag when the City Council approved a resolution setting 1972-73 pay increases for police at 8.1 percent. The resolution gave all employees, except police and supervisors, a 5.5 percent hike. Supervisors got an average of five percent more.

Police objected to the resolution because it cut an incentive plan in half. The police and the city negotiators team, which is headed by Alder, had apparently agreed on a plan that would give police employees up to 10 percent extra for extra training and education.

The UCEA objected on the grounds that negotiations had not been completed.

On July 13, the UCEA board of directors released a statement charging Alder and his staff with gross misconduct and bad faith. The statement indicated that continued disagreement might ultimately result in a strike or loss of city services.

Both the UPOA AND UCEA appealed the resolution to the City Council on Monday, July 17.

City Attorney Donald E. Maroney explained that the city had received a letter from the UCEA and the council had passed the resolution in order to insure retroactive pay as the UCEA had not wanted the salaries set in the resolution. Councilman Harold A. Bailin said he understood what the UCEA wanted and the council chose not to give it to them.

Both the UCEA and UPOA asked the council to void the resolution but the council refused and decided to keep Alder as its representative in the salary negotiations.

Alder confirmed that tentative agreement has been reached with the police but he did not want to reveal the terms until the proposal is presented to the council.

Glenn Elected Chairman Of Chaffey Trustee Board

Herschel R. Glenn has been elected chairman of the Chaffey College board of trustees.

Glenn, an Ontario attorney, succeeds Dr. Merle K. Cox, an Upland dentist, to the chairmanship. Cox was chairman for the past three years.

Other officers elected for the year ahead are Dr. Lester Stroth, a Fontana physician, vice-chairman; and Clarence H. Saunders, Ontario educator, clerk.

Saunders was selected also as a representative to the County Committee on School District Organization. Cox was named as a delegate from the board to the California Junior College Association.

The new chairman of the Faculty Senate, Bobbie Kuhlmann, was introduced at the board meeting by her predecessor, Jack L. White. She is the first woman to hold the post here.

The board will convene for approval of the publication budget at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday and for adoption of the final budget at the same hour, Aug. 7.

Regular board meetings are scheduled for the second Tuesday of each month, starting Sept. 12.

Building Here-Up, Down

Building figures for 1972 continue to seesaw, as the June total shows a drastic decrease from May's record. All types of building in June totaled only $334,852. Residential building alone accounted for $8,258,270 in May. Still, with the year only half over, 1972 figures are far ahead of the totals for 1971. Residential building last year came to $14,415,879, with the first six months of this year adding up to $16,838,620.

AL Chamber Meeting Tonight

Scottish Festival Here Sunday

A day long Scottish festival will be held this Sunday at the Upland First Presbyterian Church, 869 North Euclid Ave., starting at 3 o'clock with games, prizes and goodies. The festival is the culmination of a long worked for trip to Scotland by the 14 members of the high school youth Celtic Order. The youngsters and five adult sponsors left yesterday for the Isle of Iona, Scotland for a month. Tickets cost 50 cents for adults and 30 cents for children. Tickets are available from the church office, Celtic Order members or the central ticket booth. From 7 to 8:30 p.m. a variety show will be held in Fellowship Hall with a combination of dancers, singing, comedy and surprise acts. Throughout the afternoon pipers and Scottish dancers will add traditional Scottish flavor as will the authentic Highland games.

Upland's Own 'Grand Moses'

On a sunny day just 96 years ago in Kansas, Maggie White was born. She said her birthplace was "in Chase County near Cottonwood Falls." Maggie makes her home now at the Arlington Convalescent Home in Upland. She was reluctant about moving from her own abode. . . what would she do all day? . . . she wouldn't know any-one!

But the pretty Maggie with sparkling eyes found she made friends quickly. Encouraged by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. White of Ontario, Maggie joined the arts and crafts class at the convalescent home. Ms. White bought her some oil paints and Maggie started on something vastly different than any crochet hook she ever used. She wasn't sure painting was her art, but she kept her brushes building scenes from postcards or pictures. What Maggie produces are charming small seascapes, pastures, barns, a relative's home in Oregon nestling in green hills.

Maggie is surprised at her family's reaction to her artistic efforts. Her daughter-in-law buys frames and asks "Grandma" if she can "have this one for my bedroom. . . or one of the grandchildren would love this one. . . ." Maggie White at 96 years of age has become an artist. "Guess you can just call me Grandma Moses," Maggie said with a grin when friends came to see her works. "But I'm still not sure about painting. . . I like it, but I'd rather do this," she said showing a string of beads she had somehow strung with a crochet hook. Maggie finds that her time in the convalescent home is full of busy moments as she works with her painting and bead work. Shirley Geannes is the instructor and she develops all her students' creative talents. Working with Maggie on that visiting day were Claud Coffing and Ruth List who were painting. Rosemary McElroy who was busy with her tiles and Grace Keith who was stuffing a pillow. Ms. Geannes said her students make all of their own gifts. What's next for Maggie? She's going to paint a "waterfall that drops three times and goes underground. . . like a lost river. . . and comes back as a pretty lake."

Minnock Named Promo Director

Cathe Minnock of Upland has been named as promotion director for the multimillion-dollar Central City Mall, scheduled to open in San Bernardino in September. Ms. Minnock is currently promotion director for Montclair Plaza in Montclair. In her new role, she will coordinate special events among the merchants, and will be responsible for overall advertising programs and press relations. More than 100 retail outlets and three major department stores will be included in the new mall. Ms. Minnock is a graduate of Cal Poly Pomona, and is a member of the National Organization for Women and a director of the Press Club of Southern California. She received her appointment from William C. Brown, president of John Griffith and Co., developers of the mall.

San Bernardino Fair Deadline

Deadline for submitting entries for most contests and displays at the San Bernardino County Fair is Wednesday. This date applies to Senior department entries in agriculture, horticulture, home economics and feature exhibits and projects. Also due are all junior exhibits and projects -- F.F.A. and 4-H. Official entry blanks are available at the San Bernardino County Fair office, 14800 Seventh St., Victorville.

Supervisors To Fight New County Tax Hike

The county Board of Supervisors will carry its protest of recent legislative amendments in a tax reform bill to Sacramento. The board originally had supported Assembly Bill (A.B.) 1000 which was designed to provide a more progressive form of taxation based on the individual's ability to pay rather than the value of this property. The bill was formulated by the County Supervisors Association of California (CSAC.)

However, County Legislative Advocate Steve Franks, recently informed supervisors that amendments have been made in the bill which now make it unacceptable. The Board adopted a resolution protesting the "destructive elements" and Supervisor Nancy E. Smith and Administrative Officer Robert A. Covington announced they would be in Sacramento Friday to personally protest the changes.

Don't Play It Again Sam

A year ago, I read a book on reincarnation. I was so impressed that I went to a hypnotist to see if I could be put "under" to find out who I'd been before. We tried, but nothing worked. The hypnotist said I was resisting his suggestions, and probably wasn't a good subject.

"However, you might try concentrating on the question -- 'Who was I in my last life?' just before going to sleep at night," he told me. "That type suggestion to the mind often produces startling results."

That night, I tried out the question just before I turned off the light "Who was I in my last life?" Then I huddled under the covers, closed my eyes and waited for a vision.

I fell asleep. It wasn't long until there was a humming in my ears, and I saw a mist before my eyelids. I was back in the woods with the birds. I could see them clearly now. Five thousand canaries singing "A Bridge Over Troubled Water." An elf ran out of a thicket and handed me a small piece of paper.

The note said -- "Forget it, kid!"

I awakened feeling empty and robbed. But I never again asked the question about my last life. It will be tough enough stumbling through this one. It's a sad situation when your conscious and subconscious minds both have a sick sense of humor.

Employment Payments May Stop

The steadily improving picture in California now signals the end of an emergency program that has been providing extra unemployment compensation to long-term unemployed who had exhausted their regular benefits, a state official has announced.

L. A. Bailey, deputy director of the Department of Human Resources development, said the federally-funded Emergency Unemployment Compensation Program, which began in California on Jan. 30, 1972, will end on July 29, 1972, and under the terms of the federal law, no emergency benefits will be paid for any period after that date.

Bailey said the program, which HRD has been administering for the federal government, began in January as a temporary measure because of high unemployment. It was limited to a six-month period unless unemployment remained high.

A special formula rate of 6.5 percent was used to activate the program, combining all unemployed persons covered by unemployment insurance, plus one quarter of the number who had received their full insurance benefits but were still unemployed.

Bailey stressed that this unemployment rate is a special "formula rate," not to be confused with the overall adjusted unemployment rate issued monthly by HRD.

When the program began in California in January, the unemployment rate according to this formula was 7.66 percent, Bailey said.

Oil In Clams? Help On The Way

Clams, oysters and scallops --how much oil can they contain and still safely grace your palate?

The answer: No one quite knows.

Federal and state officials say the search for chemical standards is just beginning.

But chemists and biologists say shellfish are especially vulnerable to oil contamination. They cannot swim out of an oilspill area, and because they lie in bottom sediments, petroleum derived chemicals can reach them after dissolving in the water and lodging on the bottom.

The federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has just begun to mobilize its own researchers and scientists from the 20 coastal shellfish-producing states in a chemistry task force to set shellfish oil-pollution standards.

But J. David Clem, the FDA's shellfish sanitation director in Washington, D.C., says his long-term effort suffers from a shortage of laboratories. His hope: More adequate funding will come when the task force demonstrates the need for further research.

"What we really need to know is how to classify a polluted field and how long to keep it closed," Clem explains. "Fortunately, so far there have been almost no major spills in shellfish areas."

We're satisfied that under present guidelines harmful shellfish are not being marketed," Clem adds.

From across the country have come other spurs to action. Texas shellfishers have urged protective measures against chronic oil pollution in Galveston Harbor, and Louisiana producers charge offshore oil drilling threatens prime oyster fields.

Altogether, 20 coastal states from Maine to Washington produce shellfish -- almost 450 million pounds of it in 1969. Eighty percent of the shellfish consumed in New England comes from Chesapeake Bay, where accidental spills from tankers, oil terminals, and dredging operations have caused concern. Another 19 percent comes from Maine, with the remaining one percent produced in Massachusetts -- largely in the Cape Cod area.

The chance of accident on ever-larger tankers has spotlighted the need for action. Although proposals for oil drilling off the New England coast now target areas beyond the shellfish zone, the possibility of leaks from future drilling closer in to shore cannot be excluded.

Add to that the chronic, small scale oil pollution from municipal sewage and industrial waste.

All 20 shellfish-producing states face some of these problems, according to FDA officials.

But they emphasize that not enough is yet known about the complexities of oil chemistry and shellfish contamination to judge how serious the situation is.

As the FDA research begins, Massachusetts officials are left with little federal guidance in deciding when to re-open the West

Salad Tang: Color It Blue

When you entertain your friends for lunch, a piquant idea for the menu is always a problem. Many women want to serve salad, but are trying to think of something a bit different.

There are few things that add such zest to any salad as blue cheese crumbled in it. This is a particularly good recipe using this food.

Aspic a la blue

- 1 1/2 cups canned tomato juice
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Dash of pepper
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/3 cup chilled tomato juice
2 tablespoons vinegar
1/3 cup blue cheese, crumbled

Combine the tomato juice, celery, onion, green pepper, lemon juice, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes. Meanwhile, sprinkle gelatin over the cold tomato juice and vinegar to soften. Stir in hot mixture until dissolved. (Remove bay leaf.) Pour into mold and refrigerate.

When tomato mixture is partially set, fold in blue cheese. Refrigerate until firm. Unmold on salad greens. If desired top with additional crumbles of blue cheese.

You Are What You Eat--Really

The great chef, Auguste Escoffier, who was known as "the king of chefs and the chef of kings" often named new dishes after well-known people and friends. There was his famous "Peaches Melba," named for the opera singer, Nellie Melba and "Toast Marie" for Madame Cesar Ritz.

Although they aren't as well known, Escoffier also created dishes in honor of various deeds of heroism, such as the one he named after an American ship in 1881.

The ship, Jeanette, was crushed by ice and sank, while exploring the Arctic. Survivors barely managed to reach the coast of Siberia and safety.

The dish which Escoffier created in honor of the crew was "Supremes de Volaille Jeanette." He served it in a large platter lined with crushed ice to 300 people at the Savoy Hotel, London.

THE EGG AND YOU

Cracking Some Old Myths

They start off the day for millions of Americans at breakfast. They find their way into sandwiches and salads at lunch, and appear in that big piece of cake later on.

Eggs. They've been around since chickens and Americans love 'em. In moderation, they help provide a nutritionally balanced diet, says (your) Heart Association. But egg yolks contain more cholesterol than any other food. Too much cholesterol can speed the development of atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, the underlying cause of heart attack and stroke. And so, (your) Heart Association advises that individuals limit themselves to three whole eggs a week.

Does following a low-cholesterol diet mean that the status of the egg is declining? Definitely not, says (your) Heart Association, because egg whites are a good source of protein and there are many tasty recipes calling for egg whites only. Yellow food coloring is a good substitute for the yolk.

You can actually make scrambled eggs, French toast and omelets -- and not use the egg yolk.

Here are just a few recipes. Ask your Heart Association for other tips on reducing the risk of heart disease.

Cantonese Omelet (2 servings)

5 egg whites
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
1 3-ounce can mushrooms, sliced, well drained and dried
1 scallion, minced
1/4 teaspoon soy sauce dash of monosodium glutamate
dash of salt
yellow food coloring

Spread oil in heavy skillet or teflon pan. Beat egg whites and fold in remaining ingredients. Follow standard procedure for omelet preparation.

Variations: Add either chopped tomato, chopped onion, chives, or curry powder.

French Toast (3 servings)

1 egg white
1/4 cup skim milk
3 slices day-old bread
1 drop of yellow food coloring

dash of salt
dash of cinnamon
dash of nutmeg
Whip egg white. Add milk, seasoning and food coloring. Dip bread slices in the mixture, turning to coat each side. In a teflon skillet, without fat, brown the dipped bread on each side, and serve immediately.

oil pollution. Many potentially toxic petroleum-derived chemicals are tasteless and odorless, so that chemical testing is the only reliable yardstick in checking for contamination.

--The toxic effects of oil persist long after a spill appears to have dispersed, since certain chemical ingredients dissolve in the water and lodge for years in marshlands and bottom sediments. For bottom-dwelling shellfish this can mean prolonged contamination.

--Even as oil in the sediments decreases, hazards could remain, since oil-derived chemicals can enter the marine food chain and eventually find their way into the human diet.

----The more toxic petroleum hydrocarbons can readily reach shellfish, since they dissolve relatively easily in water to lodge in bottom sediments. They also deteriorate very slowly since they are resistant to bacterial attack.

Only further research can determine the real significance of these findings, federal and state officials say. The chemical makeup of different oils varies widely. And how serious an effect many petroleum-derived chemicals have on humans is still unclear.

The West Falmouth studies are especially valuable because the area was "pristine and oil free,"

Edison Says Pollution 'Costs'

Spending to make industrial plants environmentally more acceptable has become a major item of expense for businessmen, stockholders -- and consumers.

How much? Southern California Edison Company is a good example. This fourth-largest investor-owned electric utility in the United States had budgeted more than $60 million this year for environmental purposes, according to Jack K. Horton, chairman and chief executive officer. The company spent some $53 million last year on programs to protect the environment and to make its facilities more pleasing to the eye, and it expects to spend similar large sums in each of the next several years, he said.

Edison's environmental expenditures this year will represent about $8.20 for each of the more than 7 million electricity users in the company's 50,000-square-mile service territory. Of course, each customer's share of environmental costs will depend on the amount of electricity he uses.

The public outcry for environmental improvement, is one of the reasons that Chairman Horton declared recently that "even with the best governmental regulations, the highest level of utility management, and the most understanding public attitudes, we're looking at a continuing increase in rates for several more years."

Electric utilities in the U. S. expect to invest $1 billion on air and water pollution control in 1972 -- up from the $565 million they spent in 1971, according to the highly respected trade publication, Electrical World.

As a group, electric utilities plan the largest spending on air and water pollution control of any industry in 1972, the magazine observed.

Some individual environmentally oriented costs facing industry are huge. In the Four Corners area of New Mexico, a group of electric companies, including Edison, has already spent millions of dollars for pollution controls on a jointly-owned generating facility.

Now, new restrictive requirements in New Mexico have imposed even more stringent limitations. The new rules require modification of existing air pollution control equipment by Jan. 1, 1975. The controls do not now exist so their cost is not known -- but engineers believe Edison's share might be in excess of $30 million.

Flue gas recirculation fans for control of oxides of nitrogen are being installed in two of Edison's large generating stations this year at a total cost of $3 million, according to a company official.

What the eye perceives is a matter of great public and corporate concern now, too. But beauty has an ugly price tag.

For instance, Edison has earmarked much of its 1972 environmental budget for esthetic purposes. For the most part, the money will go toward landscaping substations, substituting decorative type transmission towers for old style structures, and for undergrounding distribution lines.

Edison has dozens of substations located throughout its service territory and, where environmental conditions justify, decorative walls, shrubbery, flowers, foliage and a variety of trees are helping to turn the somewhat stark facilities into eye-pleasing oases.

The cost, Edison valuation engineers say, runs about $30,000 per substation, but some of the units with special problems have required expenditures in the range of $100,000.

In addition to SCE's large environmental budget, the company conducts an extensive research and development program, much of which is concerned with finding solutions to environmental problems and investigating alternative ways of producing power. Edison's R&D budget is $13.7 million.

"Environmental expenditures have reached monster proportions in just a few short years," an Edison official observed recently. "We're all going to have to pay for them through the increased cost of the products we use."

Millions Now Lack Water

There are still more than 20 million rural Americans who lack running water in their homes, according to the Commission on Rural Water.

The commission, organized to assist rural families in getting adequate water and waste disposal facilities, said this estimate is based on preliminary 1970 Census figures. The estimate is conservative, with the actual number likely to be closer to 25 million.

Aggravating this serious lack is an equally critical waste disposal problem. The commission estimates that more than 30 million families are using systems that dump untreated effluent into our soil and surface waters. The "outhouse" is not a thing of the past in rural America, nor is the pipe that runs directly from a house to a nearby stream.

In commenting on these statistics, Stanley Zimmerman, coordinator of the commission's activities, said, "The extremely high number of rural people still lacking these essential services is yet another indication of our inability to come to terms with the problem."

The commission said that the FmHA water and sewer grant and loan program, while it has done much good, needs to be made more flexible and responsive.

Southern California Airport Study Released Here

The Southern California Association of Government's Airport Study Authority has received the results of a two-year consultants' study which recommends a far-reaching comprehensive plan for the future development of airports in Southern California.

The Study Report was presented to an assembly of elected representatives, transportation officials and leaders of concerned citizen groups who met in the Ambassador Hotel Ballroom in Los Angeles.

The Southern California Regional Aviation Systems Study (SCRASS) - as the report is officially known - is the result of a joint venture of System Development Corporation and William L. Pereira Associates, and was financed by grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Aviation Administration, and by local participating governments, which provided matching cash and services.

The contract for the study was authorized by the SCAG Airport Study Authority, formed in 1968 by Joint Powers Agreement between SCAG, representing the cities and counties of Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura, with the counties of Kern, San Diego, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo. SCAG took the initiative in forming the Authority to develop an aviation systems plan for the ten county region. San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell, in 1968 as SCAG vice president and chairman of the Aviation and Airport Committee, and in 1969 as SCAG president, took a leading role in development of the study.

The Airport Study Authority is composed of the SCAG Executive Committee of delegate Supervisors, Mayors and Councilmen from the SCAG region, plus representatives from each of the other four participating counties.

In his remarks to the meeting, Supervisor Vance Webb stated, "We began the 10-county study with a review of the relationships among aviation facilities within our representative counties. Airport Study Authority members were keenly aware of the problems first hand as representatives of jurisdictions owning airports or from communities adjacent to airports and as users of air travel. Some of the impacts of existing airports extend over several counties - providing benefits of airline service, general aviation activity and employment. At the same time, we also share some real liabilities in problems of noise, congestion and conflicting use of our airspace. When today's problems are added to those which will result from future growth here in Southern California, the problems become even more apparent, as does the need for coordinated planning."

John H. Saffer, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, delivered the keynote address prior to the consultants' presentation. Speaking on "The National Aviation System," Administrator Saffer stressed the importance of development of comprehensive regional aviation systems plans as part of a total integrated national airport plan.

SCAG President Jack Green, councilman from Huntington Beach, outlined a broad program of public hearings to be held throughout the region in order to obtain maximum citizen review and comment on the proposal prior to adoption of a final plan.

Councilman Green emphasized that the report of is not a final plan and has not been approved or adopted by any group, but represents the consultants' recommendations after their study and evaluation of alternatives.

"This report from the consultants will provide an excellent base from which to start public discussion and dialogue on the future of aviation in Southern California," Green told the group. "During the next several months, we will be seeking not only the official policy positions of public agencies that have airport responsibilities but also the advice, counsel and opinions of environmental groups, Chambers of Commerce, the aviation industry and all interested residents of the region."

The SCAG Executive Committee has designated a top level citizens committee to serve as a Hearing Board at the public hearings and to take testimony from all interested groups. The hearing board is to review the consultants' report, hear the opinions and concerns of the citizens and ultimately submit their findings and recommendations to the SCAG Executive Committee. "We look to this citizen committee to judge the results of technical and environmental evaluations, to resolve conflicts of fact, to interpret the opinions of the public and to present their recommendations," Green stated.

The Public Hearings Board is composed of a citizen from each of the six SCAG member counties, plus an additional member named from the city of Los Angeles. Board members present who were introduced to the assembly by President Green included Judge Herbert Cameron from the city of Los Angeles, Ott Ellingen from Riverside County, Burton Jones from Los Angeles County and Ms. Doreen Marshall from Orange County. Representatives from the other three counties of the region will be announced early in August, according to Green.

"We firmly believe that the approach we are taking in this phase of the study is both responsive and necessary," Green stated. "The approach allows for maximum input while still placing ultimate responsibility for the very difficult and meaningful regional decisions with the locally elected officials. It is my belief that it is at the local level that we are best able to chart our own futures. Backed by adequate technical data and public comment, the decisions will be those which will best serve us all."

While the meeting schedule provided no opportunity for questions from the floor, Green responded to some anticipated concerns. He told the group that full copies of the complete report would be mailed to all affected government agencies within the coming weeks. Copies of a Summary Report prepared by the consultants were distributed to the press and all who attended the meeting.

HOLT AND INDIAN HILL POMONA

Theater Offers 'Acting Electrics'

It's called Pacific Group Theater, a new acting technique--Acting Electrics--now available to Pomona Valley actors at the Valley Community Theater, 120 E. 3rd, Pomona.

Acting Electrics will be under the direction of A. E. innovator R. Eastman Dow, well known locally for his direction of "Tobacco Road" and "A Streetcar Named Desire," both VCT productions.

For two years, Dow provided the leadership in policy making and overall supervision of VCT. He was involved in expansion of the theatrical capabilities, and in the increasing of the calibre of VCT productions.

Acting Electrics was developed by Dow over a 15 year period and is grounded in the proven principles of drama developed and promulgated by Constantin Stanislavski, Lajos Egri, Mordecai Gorelik and Mara Alexander Gilbert. It has, however, been considerably modified, extended and detailed by the scientific interchange of analogy with the technical field of electronics.

In addition to training actors in this system, PGT develops its own playwrights, directors and scenic designers. This makes for real "ensemble theater." Original dramatic works for both stage and film productions are being created by PGT's playwrights--in-residence, talented writers who learn the performing techniques while they get to know intimately the actors and actresses who will be bringing their characters and situations to life on stage or screen.

PGT administrators are convinced that they are creating the finest artistic company ever developed. They believe strongly in the imperative need for a revitalized dedication to theater as a popular art, and for a renewed sense of social responsibility in theater.

For more information regarding this workshop at VCT in Acting Electrics call Sandra Gilliland at 628-2540.

Are You Paying Too Much Income Tax?

Are you paying income taxes at a higher rate than your next-door neighbor?

You are if you are single - a widow, widower, divorcee, spinster or bachelor. Or if you are a married couple and both of you work. And if your next-door-neighbor happens to be a married couple, with the wife a nonworking partner.

Your rate of taxation is 40 percent higher than your neighbor's in this case if you are a double-income married couple. The rate of taxation is 20 percent higher for the singles group.

What can you do about it? Write to your congressman and your senators without delay. You may already have done so, but an extra reminder will not be amiss.

For Congress will be adjourning the session in the fall. Two bills, one in the House of Representatives, and one in the Senate, have been introduced for the purpose of correcting the tax inequity for both groups.

If passage of these bills is put off, they may be lost in the shuffle in the next Congress when a general overhaul of the tax laws is contemplated.

That is the concern of organizations that represent the singles and the double-income married couples.

The House Ways and Means Committee held hearings last spring on the tax treatment of single persons and married couples where both spouses are working.

Last November a last-minute taxpayer rider for singles was tacked on to the President's tax bill and narrowly defeated, 55 to 41.

Sen. Robert Packwood (R) of Oregon, one of the sponsors of the rider, was gratified by this show of hands and promptly proclaimed, "We'll get it through in '72."

The drive is on and there isn't much time.

How did this all come about? It began in 1948 when Congress passed a law that permitted married couples (with a non-wage-earning wife) to split their income and file jointly. This had the effect of reducing taxation for this favored group.

And it meant that single persons, as a result, were left with a tax rate of some 40 percent higher than married couples who could take advantage of income-splitting.

The 1948 bill was passed by a Republican Congress over President Truman's veto.

Singles battled for tax equality for years until in 1969 Congress passed a bill that revised the tax laws so that a single person would have to pay only 20 percent more than married couples.

But a funny thing happened to this tax bill on its way through Congress. It partly righted one inequity only to cause another.

It revised the tax laws in such a way that double-income couples could not benefit from income-splitting and therefore were left paying income taxes at a rate 40 percent higher than other married couples.

Now married couples who work have joined the tax revolt. They want tax equality with other married people. They do not want to be penalized because both husband and wife work to support the home.

And singles are not satisfied with what the administration has termed "a reasonable compromise." They don't want a compromise. They want equal treatment on the income-tax reform.

The only fair tax is a tax on income, insists Ms. Patty Cavin, executive director of the Committee on Single Taxpayers, a widow and mother of two children.

Vivien Kellems of Connecticut, who has been protesting the flaws in the laws for years, says that the Constitution does not tax people, "it taxes income."

Ms. Kellems is well known as a woman of action. She has a suit pending against the U.S. Internal Revenue Service to recover "what they have taken from me illegally," as she puts it.

The Committee of Single Taxpayers, commonly known as "COST," was organized last year. It is a Washington-based organization (P.O. Box 1789) and headed by well-known Washington "pros."

It has members all over the U.S. who have contributed a $10 minimum membership.

Congress has before it a bill by Rep. Edward I. Koch (D) of New York (HR 1493). Originally drawn to correct the tax discrimination against single people, it now includes the proposed changes in the law that would also lift the unfair tax burden from double-income married couples.

In the Senate, Sen. Packwood is teaming up with Sen. Walter Mondale (D) of Minnesota to file similar legislation in a bill or possibly a rider to provide similar relief for both groups.

EVERY DOLLAR YOU SAVE IS A BOOST TO THE ECONOMY.

Some people would have you believe that saving money is a disservice to the economy of this country. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Your money is loaned out to build new homes and churches and shopping centers, and low-cost multiple dwellings.

And that means jobs. Jobs for carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, road-builders, painters and a host of other occupations. Jobs for the people who cut the timber, make the bricks, manufacture the plumbing materials and paint.

The list is endless. It goes on and on. Your savings working to build the economy while they are building for your future.

It has been estimated that every dollar provided by a Savings and Loan creates four dollars of new economic activity. As a result, the $38 billion we loaned in mortgages last year generated $152 billion in the economy.

Do something good for yourself. Open an account at a Savings and Loan Association. We'll put your money to work—for you and for the country.

Track 'Extra' Revealed Here

Along with its usual festivities, there was an interesting sidelight to the fourth Chaffey College All-Corner Track Meet.

Matched in the open 1320 were two of the area's premier athletes -- Upland's Gordon Innes and Montclair's Mickey Senior.

What made their race such an interesting spectacle was that the running distance was sort of a half way measure for both.

Innes had been a star in the two-mile at Upland, setting a national record for a 16-year old when he won the eight-lap event in the CIF, Southern Section finals as a junior. Last season, Innes lost his national record and CIF title to Santa Monica's sensational Curtis Beck.

Senior, a former prep star at Montclair High, ran last season at Chaffey College, establishing himself as one of the top junior college 880 runners in California.

Thus, a classic matchup -- the premier distanceman (Innes) versus the explosive middle distanceman (Senior) -- in a race which could be considered as a medium of their two specialties.

Senior evolved as the winner of the showdown, running a creditable 3:09.4. Innes finished a close second at 3:10.8.

Both runners, however, outclassed the rest of the fine field as Upland's Bob Kryczko was a distant third at 3:16.0.

While the 1320 proved to be the meet's most interesting spectacle, San Geronio's Ari Sams was probably its top performer -- winning the 100 in a blazing 9.9 and the long jump with a leap of 22-2-1/2.

Other top marks in the meet were turned in by Chino's Matt Wagner in the high school pole vault (13-6), Norton Air Force Base's Rex Harvey in the open pole vault (15-4) and Chaffey's Keith Goldie in the high jump (6-2).

Kryczko came back to win the two mile in 9:46.0, Chino's Mark Wagner and Chaffey's Jim Younggren each won their respective heats of the 220 with times of 23.0, while Chaffey's Tony Lewis was victorious in the 120 high hurdles at 15.7 in other creditable performances.

Meanwhile, Chino's Karen Stone starred in the girl's division, winning both the 100 and the 220 with fine times of 12.1 and 27.0.

Pitching Key To Setback

If Upland Post 73's failure to challenge Ontario for the District 25 championship can be attributed to anything, it would have to be pitching.

Last week was a good indication of the problems Upland has had with its pitching as opponents rolled up 32 runs and 31 hits in handing Post 73 two losses in its three games.

Upland Tops Colt League

Ontario extended the suspense, but Upland emerged as the winner of the District One Colt League Playoffs.

Ontario won the first game of the double elimination finals, 5-3, but Upland came back to claim the championship in an 8-6 victory.

In the championship game, Ontario had broken out to a 5-0 advantage in the first inning, but Upland exploded for six in the second and two more in the fourth to take an 8-5 lead.

Ontario rallied for another run in the top of the seventh and had a runner on base, but Upland starter Joe Orzeck fanned the final two batters to end the threat.

Orzeck allowed just four singles and collected two hits, while teammate John Sandoval smashed a home run to pace the Upland attack.

In Valley Little League action, Upland Foothill, and Cucamonga Citrus won their respective area championships.

Ian DuVall hurled a six-hitter in Upland Foothill's 2-1 win over Upland American, Manny Castro, the losing pitcher, allowed just two hits.

Bob Kilmer (8-0) remained unbeaten as Cucamonga whipped Vineyard 7-3. Tom Eichenberg smashed a single and a double, while teammate Robert Meza knocked in what proved to be the winning run with a single.

Actually, errors played a major role in Upland's 9-3 non-league loss to Ontario Wednesday. Post 73 committed six errors which accounted for five unearned runs for the District 25 champs.

Upland had jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the first inning as all the runs scored when Ontario centerfielder Gary Oddi overran Brian MacLaughlin's single.

However, with help from Upland on the field, Ontario took the lead for good in the second when it scored four runs.

Post 73 bounced back Friday in an 11-6 win over San Bernardino.

Upland collected eight hits, with MacLaughlin pacing the attack again with a three-run homer and a double. First Baseman Stu DuVall also chipped in with a double and a single.

However, Post 73's pitching problems persisted as starter Bob Self was tagged four runs and five hits, which included a pair of home runs.

Upland's pitching woes reached their peak Sunday when Post 73 jumped out to a 9-0 advantage in the first inning, but fell eventually to Redlands, 17-15.

Gary Waldron had a big day at the plate, smacking a home run, double, and single.

However, it was a different story for the Upland southpaw on the mound as Redlands tagged him for 17 runs and 18 hits. Also contributing heavily to the 22-hit Upland attack were Self, who collected a double and two singles, Dave Hill, who ripped three singles, and DuVall, who had a home run and a single.

Montclair Post 616 gained a split in last week's action, bowing to La Verne Post 330, 20-6, while whipping San Bernardino, 8-1.

Montclair collected 11 hits against La Verne starter Gary Hanson, but Post 616 proved to be no match with Post 330 in the hit department as Mike Casella and a host of others were racked for 27 safeties, which included four doubles and two triples.

Tim Price provided Montclair with better pitching Sunday against San Bernardino as he scattered 10 hits.

Meanwhile, Post 616 rapped out 14 hits, including five of the extra base variety.

Jim Brown led the Montclair assault with a three-for-four hitting performance while Mark Berrier collected a home run and a single.

Tri-City closed out its season on an unsuccessful note as it fell to San Bernardino 9-6.

The loss evened Tri-City's District 18 record at 8-8.

Tri-City spotted San Bernardino an 8-0 advantage before scoring its six runs in the sixth and eighth innings.

Pat Alexander ripped a two-run homer and Rick Summitt went two-for-three to pace the nine hit Tri-City attack.

Veterans Aid In Fighting Fires

Vietnam-era veterans are aiding in the battle to control the rash of dry-weather blazes plaguing California's forests and brushlands, a senior Reagan Administration official has disclosed.

The official, Norman Blacher, deputy director for the jobs division of the Department of Human Resources Development, said that an HRD proposal to the California Department of Conservation resulted in the employment of 125 Vietnam-era veterans as firefighters at "live-in" fire camps in various locations throughout the state.

Blacher said that the men selected were veterans who plan to attend school in the fall of 1972. The project, which began June 19, terminates August 31.

"Fire protection for our forests in an extremely dry year certainly is a high-priority need,"

Blacher said, "and at the same time we are providing veterans wishing to attend school in September with a nest egg that should be helpful."

Blacher noted that the project was part of the Reagan Administration's stepped-up effort to assist returning veterans, Summertime finds most people dashing out of doors to enjoy nature's glories. Take a book along, whether your particular beat is a quiet walk along the shore, a foray into the jungle around the backyard birdbath, or an adventure in the wilds of the Pacific Northwest. A look at some of the summer's more interesting reading.

Easy Summer View--And Reviews

What To Say To A Sparrow This Summer

This is the season for dipping into a cool wave or a good book, hopefully finding neither one polluted. It is no easier to recommend a book than a wave, but this fact has never kept those already immersed from shouting you on.

So in the heat of the moment we fearlessly recommended any book that guarantees emotional survival in this election year, a book of such low concentrational demand that musical backgrounds from transistor radios and clinking ice blend soothingly with the thread of the story.

Almost the only subject that fits this pulsebeat is the natural world around us, while it is at its lush, abundant best. Furthermore, it may well be the last chance to read about nature while it is still uncontroversial. You don't run into nature much anymore, and when you do, it's not always pleasant.

Your rating — naturewise

But just pitching into a nature book willy-nilly can be dangerous. Nature books are of varying intensity and have to match one's personal rating on the nature scale. Those who spend much time climbing mountains, fishing, canoeing the wild streams, tend to read any nature book with a fierce, Tarzanlike snobbery, while those who never venture beyond the cement cupid holding up the backyard birdbath can't stand much more of nature than the foggy dew on cobwebs.

First decide whether you are the grapevine swinger or the birdbath ballerina to avoid reading the wrong book. Titles can be misleading, so approach each book with the caution of a bird watcher sneaking up on a Blackburnian Warbler at 5 a.m.

There is a charming book about Martha's Vineyard that will please many. However, those who choose First Spring by Phyllis Meras (Catham Press, $5.95) may find it a little too close to the birdbath.

Starting with her slightly mystical title, the author wades knee deep through velvet bumblebees, white butterflies and multiflora roses, happening occasionally upon tawny-nosed fawns or colonies of heron.

Evidently going from New York to Martha's Vineyard to live the year round is slightly traumatic in its revelation of nature, not only because of encounters with real birds and animals, but also because of the huge wit and sagacity of the rural gurus.

The author learns from the natives how lobsters are caught, that boy and girl swans are known as cobs and pens, and that a unique quality of island wisdom also flows from even the transient summer people, such as revolutionary Julius Lester, editor Hiram Haydn and author Vance Packard.

As a matter of record, Phyllis Meras is managing editor of the Vineyard Gazette, but never betrays this fact by writing in crisp, clear newspaper prose. Rather, her sentences are like her winding roads, full of turns and pauses — like as not set off by dashes — or, for a change of pace, in the midst of everything, commas, but even more often (for no apparent reason) parentheses (as if forthright statement was somehow unislanderified).

Country road writing

"First Spring," nevertheless, is a touching little book. It leaves no doubt of an impulsive, underlying love for the Vineyard and its denizens. It strikes a plaintive blow for the cause of ecology. And it cries out for the modest beauty of island living — even though it overlooks the salty fact that most island-lovers can never afford to live on one these days.

A word should be said for Mary Lee Herbster's beautiful line drawings that decorate this book. Those readers who divide their time between the birdbath and the deep woods might find a real winner in "How to Talk to Birds" by Richard C. Davids (Alfred A. Knopf, $6.95).

Of course any red-blooded man sensitive to titles will want to carry this one in a plain brown wrapper, but it's worth the trouble. For one thing, Davids seems unconcerned with the ominous aspects of ecology; he has no gloomy predictions but writes instead an enthusiastic, instructive book, as if nature had just been discovered. And as it turns out, you find you can easily talk to birds if you don't care what you say.

Blam, zowie

There are any number of problems between people and animals, and Davids takes a casual, if not freewheeling approach to answering them. For instance, how do you keep birds from smashing into your windows? Well, one answer is never to wash any windows.

In fact the book's only fault may be just this easygoing quality. The reader, instead of worrying about endangered species, might become convinced that the birds are going to win — to say nothing of the weasels, raccoons and snowshoe hares — and that by following the author's joy-filled recipe he will soon be only a part of a great suburban zoo.

The easygoing quality may be an effort to offend no one, especially hunters. Thus he explains deer killing as an urge to know and understand and be at one with wildlife. Then, blam, bam, zowie.

No doubt this theory once had some remote psychological basis, but too often the work "hunter" refers to the modern paunchy, leather-elbowed, shoot-anything-that-moves type whose only risk is getting his thumb caught in the bottle opener. Taken altogether, though, this can be a happy, summer book that blends with ice clinking.

Admit it. There are a lot of mornings you've wanted to stick your head out the window and say something to a woodpecker.

A vanishing island

The great temptation in writing a nature book is to describe every pickleweed and pussy willow along the path to the swamp. So it is essential to note that Hazel Heckman in "Island Year" (University of Washington Press, $7.95) skillfully avoids the pickleweed-pussy-willow-trap and delineates a year on Anderson Island month by month with a lot of zest and imagination.

She does describe pickleweeds, however, and she does comment on every shrew, shrike, and skunk cabbage within hiking distance, but it is artfully done, and the reader willingly follows her through the misty thrill of her morning journeys, and eagerly awaits the fog rising off Puget Sound.

Adventure in this kind of book is made up of ouzels and otters, cockles and clams or the orange blaze of California poppies. But Heckman paints so beautifully with her words that she brings a kind of excitement to the most modest discoveries. She is also a keen and penetrating observer and thus can also give an unmistakable authority to her enjoyable writing.

There is a quiet sadness in the telling about Anderson Island. Perhaps it lies in the realization that all unspoiled islands are almost gone, and that even telling about one invites hordes of nature-starved people to descend on the place.

But, hopefully most readers, recognizing that the beauty is in the eye of the beholder, will reach out and appreciate whatever form of nature surrounds them.

Buildozers have indeed come pushing and clanking onto the island. The chapter Heckman devotes to this is but a few pages long, and her sentences about it are bone-bare and almost whispered.

But her words strike like a chill wind.

The thrill of the American past still exists in the pages of "The Passing of the Great West," a collection of the papers of George Bird Grinnell, edited by John F. Reiger (Winchester Press, $8.95).

Dr. Reiger has added linking passages of his own, presumably to make the book clearer and more readable. After a few pages the reader adapts himself to the difference between quoted passages and editor's insert, and finds the narrative flowing with the interest and detail of an autobiography.

George Bird Grinnell was a close friend of the Audubons, of General Custer, and many of the plain's Indians. His adventures start in the city of New York hunting meadowlarks, robins, and woodpeckers in the woods of 158th Street with the Audubon boy or in the swamp west of 10th Avenue.

He describes Buffalo Bill, and pictures the frontiersmen in their buckskin and moccasins. He tells how buffalo stopped trains for three hours while they stampeded continuously past.

After watching classic Westerns on television one begins to believe the saga of the West was one big fiction. But to read the Grinnell accounts is to feel the dust of living in the saddle, the heat of the plains, the threat of wolves, and the reality of hostile Indians.

The fact that Grinnell was a recorder of facts and not a storyteller helps to give this book its remarkable flavor.

But the Great West was a man's world. Many a quiet housewife feeding chickens on the windowsill may wonder why, with all of the vast and violent aspects of the outdoors, it is referred to as "mother" nature. The book, then, to read is "The Silent North" by Olive A. Fredrickson, written with Ben East (Crown Publishers, $5.95). And it may give an insight into the womanhood the grandmothers of today's blue-jeaned hippy once knew.

A woman today does not have to determine whether it is safe to approach the deer, moose or bear she has shot by touching it on the eye with the muzzle of her rifle. Nor does she have to plod 20 miles behind dying sled dogs in the lowering gloom of 60-below weather, carrying a baby. This happens only in soap operas or B movies. It is also unlikely today's woman, seven months pregnant, might be trapped by the rage of booming flocks when ice out comes to northern rivers — no food except for grass and tree-bark and an occasional muskrat.

This, need we add, is a true adventure story of man against the wilderness. But most particularly it is the life story of a woman, not a Brunnhilde or an Amazon, but a small, shy, completely feminine being.

With 'pluck'

The book has its grim aspects, but it is also sweet with the artless, disciplined romancing of the frontier, the simple truths about happiness, the secret touching of hands.

Ms. Fredrickson says a paved highway now runs where she once left civilization behind, and it serves as a reminder that other things change besides the landscape. The meaning of life, for instance, and the meaning of words that describe it. Our grandmothers used such words as "pluck" and "true grit," which are not easily defined now. They meant more than determination and courage. A person with "pluck" usually won, but it was not the winning that brought bestowal of the word, it was the manner in which the effort was made.

This woman was faithful to the true heritage of her sex. She had not only the character to endure the ultimate hardships of the north, but the character to write of it in this way:

"I have such a host of splendid memories. The fast water of big north-country rivers, the awesome roar of ice out, the feel of a canoe in a quiet current... "Most of all, I think, I like to recall the stillness of the North and revel in the recollection. The windless nights of winter, cold and clear, when the white radiance of the moon was beauty to take your breath away. The days when the sun shone blindingly bright in a cloudless sky or when snow sifted to earth as silently as floating this-tledown...

"As for the hardships and privations that were once my lot, I had a wonderful letter not long ago from a woman I have never met... It was a letter to warm the heart. "You are a plucky woman," she wrote, "with character and courage. There is urgent need in the world today for more like you. I hope you are grateful to God for the grit that saw you through and for the appreciation and wonder you have felt all your life for the earth and its places of wilderness and beauty and solitude."

Ms. Fredrickson answered, "I am grateful to God indeed."

And it is worth reading, indeed, this story of Olive A. Fredrickson, who is not a writer. Just a woman who had true grit.

Picnics To Attract Fairgoers

Encephalitis Endangers Tourists

Travelers to Mexico are warned to avoid exposure to mosquitoes which might infect them with Venezuelan equine encephalitis (VEE).

The State Department of Public Health says reports from U.S. and Mexican authorities indicated that extensive new outbreaks of the disease are occurring in several regions of south, central, and western Mexico. Fatal cases in horses have been confirmed in Durango, Nayarit, and Guerrero states, and a number of non-fatal human cases also have been reported.

Horses are being vaccinated in an effort to arrest the spread of VEE, according to Dr. Richard Emmons, state public health medical epidemiologist. However, he said there is no vaccine licensed for human use. Travelers in affected areas of Mexico should use insect repellents to reduce the risk of exposure to mosquitoes.

The disease spread from Mexico into southern Texas in July, 1971, causing 88 human cases, none of which were fatal, and hundreds of fatal horse cases. Massive federal and state programs to quarantine and vaccinate horses and to control mosquitoes were effective in preventing further spread of the disease in the U.S.

VEE in man is rarely fatal but may in some cases be severe and temporarily debilitating.

A customer receives some special help from Don Spiegel

A family business continues to expand

POMONA — An attitude of pride is projected by Don Spiegel as he discusses the different services and departments of his family business, Spiegel Rug and Furniture Cleaning at 4299 State St.

Working with Spiegel in the business are his wife, Aubrey, and his two sons, Brian and David.

"Our good name is important to us," said Spiegel, "and we're as legitimate an operation as you can find."

Spiegel began his business in 1950 and continues to expand it. The latest addition to the firm is a home carpeting and drapery decorating service. The owner states that the decorating aspect is a result of the demands of his customers for such a service.

A decorator will be hired by the cleaning company to visit customers at home to help coordinate carpeting, custom made drapes and furniture. Spiegel states that there is no extra cost for the service.

The Spiegel business makes custom made draperies and carpeting sales available to customers.

Carpeting in Stock

"We carry all our rugs in stock," said Spiegel who explained that most carpet sellers do not stock the carpets but make their sales by showing samples from a book. "By stocking the carpets we sell we put our money into it before the customers do."

In pointing out the advantages of his carpet sales Spiegel said that many carpet stores sell "only what's sellable."

"We don't. We sell what we're willing to face again in two years when it has to be cleaned," he said. "After all, who knows carpet better than those who work with it?"

"We go into many homes to clean carpeting and find that the people are unhappy when the rug they bought from a carpet store doesn't hold up after cleaning."

"At Spiegel's the customer has the opportunity to deal with one company when he buys his carpeting, has it installed and has it cleaned."

"It is important that customers buy their carpeting from somebody that is established because the average customer buys by his senses and he can be led."

Advantage Cited

"At Spiegel's the customer has a decided advantage. We sell carpeting that not only looks and feels good, but is also of good quality at less cost."

"Spiegel's must face the carpet it sells when it is called in to clean it, so our carpeting is guaranteed indefinitely."

It's cleaning time with vacuums, other equipment

Spiegel added that if his employees find a weakness in a carpet sold by Spiegel or its installation when they are cleaning it, they will have it repaired.

Spiegel explained that in his firm's carpet cleaning, dirt and soil are extracted by high power machinery, whereas "other cleaners just scrub the dirt off and dirt deep inside comes to the surface after a short time. It may look clean, but it really isn't."

Variety of Cleanings

Spiegel's first puts the rug through a $12,000 dusting machine that shakes dirt and dust out, then sends it onto a $50,000 machine that sends jets of solution onto the rug and then brushes it from two angles. After three rinses the rug has all moisture squeezed out of it and is hung in a high-ceilinged drying room.

In the drying room an automatic system circulates heat and air and has a controlled humidity to create a "natural" drying atmosphere, Spiegel states that it is even better than natural drying because there is no sun or dust.

"We are proud of our cleaning technique and allow people to come into the plant during operating hours and see the system in action," said Spiegel who feels that the more people know about his company and compare it with others the more they'll like Spiegel's.

At Spiegel's rugs are also repaired, refringed, or given any service "necessary to retain the life of the rug," the owner commented.

Drapery cleaning is done by the "most up to date method," and Spiegel maintains that he has the only non-immersion machine in the area.

Draperies are cleaned by a compound-friction method rather than washing. Spiegel stated that washing is hard on the drapes and that his method and machinery cleans drapes like "fine furs."

"With our method the mortality rate of draperies is a lot less. After cleaning the drapes we fan fold them and hang them for steaming rather than pressing which is hard on them," Spiegel said.

Furniture cleaning at the local company goes along the same lines. Dirt is extracted and solvents are used for cleaning rather than harsh detergents.

"We can clean furniture over and over again without harm to the material," the Spiegel owner commented.

"New customers become old customers and send us new customers."

As a member of the California Rug Cleaners Institute Spiegel keeps informed of all the latest techniques in his field.

"We have the most the industry can offer. No one in this area is in our league," Spiegel stated proudly.

Who Knows CARPETS & DRAPERIES Better Than Us? DON SAYS...

Don Spiegel

In The Valley Since 1950

Did you know that we have one of the largest stocks of new carpet and drapery fabrics in the valley, with a complete decorator service.

Having one of the largest and most modern cleaning plants in the world for cleaning carpets, drapery and furniture, gives a decided advantage in selecting the right carpet or drapery fabric for you.

Avoid the disappointment many people experience after selecting a carpet for appearance only. Appearance is important, but durability and service can make the difference between enjoying your carpets and draperies or being disappointed later.

Take the advantage of knowing how the carpet will look in your home by seeing it unrolled in the large piece, not a small sample!

DEEP Steam wall-to-wall carpet cleaning offers you:

THOROUGH GENTLE CLEANING... actually removes soil from the carpet pile. It does not scrub it deeper like the old shampoo method. No brushes, scrubbing action, or harsh chemicals are used to damage your carpet pile.

BEAUTIFIED CARPET PILE... wet steam with a cleaning agent and powerful extraction process help to lift matted pile, and restore color and texture, leaving your carpet really clean.

MOISTURE CONTROL... powerful extraction action leaves fast drying and minimizes carpet shrinkage.

SOIL RETARDING, DEODORIZING, MOTH PROOFING... during the cleaning operation every fiber of your carpet is coated with a soil retardant, deodorizer and moth proofing.

LONGER CARPET LIFE... because the need for frequent professional cleaning is greatly reduced, and thoroughly cleaned carpets wear much longer.

YEARS AHEAD IN EXPERIENCE... Since 1964 we have DEEP Steam cleaned over 30 million square feet of carpet and have gained valuable information (that only experience can bring) in the effective use of Wet Steam for carpet cleaning. Over these years we have constantly maintained our high standard of excellence by developing more effective cleaning agents, techniques, and equipment to improve our service. Be sure to accept only the Original DEEP Steam Carpet Cleaning.

HOW DEEP Steam SOIL EXTRACTION WORKS

This diagram shows how the revolutionary new process works. DEEP Steam soil extraction applies wet steam containing a professional cleaning formula (emulsifiers, soil retardants, deodorizers and mothproofing under pressure deep into the carpet fibers. The two cleaning agents (steam and emulsifiers) combine to break loose the soil and the static electric charge, which holds the soil deep in the pile of the carpet and brings this soil into suspension. Then, instantly, the moisture and soil are removed by the powerful continuous extraction process into a separate stainless steel container. During this cleaning operation every fiber is coated with SOIL RETARDANT, DEODORIZER and MOTH PROOFING to keep your carpet cleaner and protected longer. When using this method, we GUARANTEE that your wall-to-wall carpet will be cleaner than ever before possible.

"We Have Steam Cleaned Carpets Longer Than Anyone Else In The World"

The Old Method

The conventional shampoo scrubbing method uses preliminary vacuuming to remove some loose soil. The shampoo equipment, with harsh brushes, utilizing different types of liquid detergents or powders, scrubs the remaining soil DEEPER into the carpet... and even with the help of a wet vacuum fails to remove most of the soil or residue. This residue which is left in the carpet then works its way to the surface and attracts more soil. Soon your carpet may appear more soiled than before!

Michael A. Clarke has been appointed 4-H Youth advisor for the University of California Agricultural Extension Service in San Bernardino County. In his new position, Clarke will be working with the other youth staff members; Margaret Kohl, Michael Trujillo, and Jacqueline Murphy, in developing and maintaining programs emphasizing youth development. This program includes educational projects, using community resources, career counseling, and the youths' personal development in both rural and urban areas. Youth advisors are responsible for the county's 4-H program, which now comprises 1700 4-H Club members, 400 adult volunteer leaders, and is expanding into urban areas not previously reached.

Born in Stockton, Clarke graduated from the University of California at Davis. He earned his B.S. degree in Applied Behavioral Science - Community Counseling. As a youth, he was a volunteer worker for the Red Cross and dealt primarily with young people. He was that organization's delegate to the California Council on Children and Youth.

Smog Data Released

Announcing "encouraging new data in the fight against air pollution," the Automobile Club of Southern California has released the results of its six-month lab study of 93 new, domestic cars.

The Auto Club reported that 83 percent of the 1972 test cars "either met or bettered the California standards for hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen—compared with only 46 percent of the vehicles tested last year."

These results were announced by Louis J. Bintz, manager of automotive engineering for the Auto Club, at a recent meeting of the California Air Resources Board at the Bank of America Building in San Francisco. (Dr. Arie Haagen-Smit heads the newly reorganized Board).

According to Bintz, the "most striking" result of the tests was "the number of 1972 vehicles that passed all three state standards." He noted that 100 percent of the Club-tested General Motors cars bettered the three standards in 1972, compared to 71 percent in 1971. Of the Club-tested Fords, 79 percent bettered the three standards in 1972, compared to 78 percent in 1971.

Chrysler Corporation showed the greatest improvement over last year when only 4 percent of its Club-tested vehicles met the 1971 standards as compared with 73 percent in 1972, Bintz said.

Although the Auto Club has no 1971 test figures for American Motor cars, 38 percent of these passed the Club's three tests in 1972. But Bintz added that all of the American Motors cars did meet two out of three standards and that the "small margin by which some vehicles exceeded that state standards was more than offset by the extremely low emissions of the remainder."

He credited the auto industry's "stricter assembly-line test procedures" for the improvement in emission control, along with improved anti-pollution technology. This technology includes exhaust-gas recirculation, air injection, thermostatically controlled air cleaners, transmission and speed-controlled spark timing, "lean" carburetors, and other special devices.

The cleaner emissions have been achieved with a small loss in gasoline mileage, according to the Club's findings. Comparing matched pairs of 1971 and '72 models for gas mileage, the Club found a 4.6 percent reduction in fuel economy with the improved emission controls. On an average, 1972 test models will go 12.3 miles on a gallon of gas, while like models tested in 1971 got almost 13 miles to a gallon.

According to Bintz, all testing was conducted in the Auto Club's Automotive Research Lab in downtown Los Angeles. The lab itself is certified by the state for proficiency and proper equipment and is staffed with qualified technicians, Bintz said.

The test procedure involved "cold starts" using cars with very low mileage (an average beginning mileage of 25). All vehicles had V-8, automatic-transmission engines and were fueled with low-lead regular gasoline.

Water Shortage Is Severe

The Colorado River Aqueduct of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California is running brimful at a record one billion 250 million gallons a day to meet soaring demands for imported, supplemental water this summer. That's 250 million gallons a day above the design flow.

Water in the aqueduct is only four to six inches from the top of the canal sections as against the 18 inches of freeboard originally designed.

The district also has speeded up initial deliveries of water from the State Water Project and asked its member agencies to cut their imported water purchases wherever they can, in order to enable it to maintain adequate reserve supplies in the terminal reservoirs in the event of an emergency.

"With the extreme drought this winter and spring, our water sales since the first of the year have been 20 per cent ahead of previous estimates," Frank M. Clinton, MWD general manager, said.

"We've asked our member agencies to make the fullest practicable use of groundwater in their basins and to voluntarily cut back on agricultural water use," he said.

The draw-down on Lake Mathews, terminal reservoir for the 242-mile-long Colorado River Aqueduct, has been extremely heavy on the heels of a dry winter in which, for the first time in its history, MWD wasn't able during the early spring to refill the reservoir near the city of Riverside.

"For about two months, by using all nine pumps at each of our five pumping plants around the clock, we'll be pumping as much water as can possibly be pushed through the aqueduct to maintain sufficient emergency storage in Lake Mathews," Clinton said.

"We should have a two-month supply or about 60,000 acre-feet available in Mathews by the end of the summer—enough to handle any major outage on either the Colorado River Aqueduct or the state project."

Lake Mathews can store 182,000 acre-feet, but was down to only 100,000 acre-feet this week, with the two months of most severe demand, August and September, still to come.

"We are getting good cooperation from our member agencies on using groundwater, instead of buying from us," Clinton said.

The district has since 1955 operated a winter program for its member agencies which have underground basins. However, because of the drought, no water has been available for replenishment purposes since February.

MWD is receiving water from Northern California out of Castaic Reservoir, terminus of the West Branch of the state project.

Water from Castaic, however, can currently be delivered into only a relatively small portion of the district's 4900-square-mile service area, pending completion of more major distribution lines under the $1.3-billion expansion program started in 1965.

The West Branch of the state project is also scheduled to be shut down for two months in September and October to permit installation of gates on the Angeles Tunnel for operation of a Los Angeles Department of Water and Power hydroelectric plant at Castaic.

Calleguas Municipal Water District and Las Virgenes Municipal Water District, MWD member agencies, respectively, in Ventura County and western Los Angeles County, began receiving the first water from the state project in April.

With a speed-up in distribution through a line previously carrying water from the Colorado, MWD's Santa Monica Feeder, water from the north is now also going to San Fernando, Burbank, Glendale, Beverly Hills and Santa Monica.

Deliveries to the South Bay area of Los Angeles County and other connections along the route will come later this year with completion of the District's new Sepulveda Feeder. It will extend from MWD's Joseph Jensen Filtration Plant in the San Fernando Valley to the Second Lower Feeder in Torrance.

HAVE YOU HELPED CLEAN UP

AMERICA TODAY ?

Remember when you went fishing and there were fish instead of empty beer cans? Remember when you took a ride in the country and there wasn't a single empty carton or abandoned car? And the streets in your town? No litter, no spilled foods, no junk. It was America the beautiful.

We'd better get busy and do something about it — and we'd better do it fast. Start with your own yard. Your own street. Clean them up. Get those bottles and cans and papers to the recycling center of your community. How about it? Have you helped clean up America today? It's time.
